LEAGUE PARK, CINCINNATI, July 8.—"Matty," said Manager Davis, "now is your pitching wing to-day?"
"Pretty good," replied the college boy, as he stretched his six feet of athletic young manhood and yawned after the fashion of a strenuous one who is never happy when he is not in action.
"Well," replied Davis, "limber up your whip and get out on the rubber. We've got to head off this tobigan act before it gets too serious. It's up to you to start the boys off on another winning streak. There are only thirty-six points between us and Boston. If we continue BATEMAN'S POINT, R. I., July 8.—Fickle breezes, mostly from the south, a clear sky, but the same long roll of the sea as on Saturday, were conditions found by the three yachts, Constitution, Columbia and Independence, when they came outside for the second contest of the Newport Yacht Racing Association series to-day. In fact, at 10 o'clock there was so little wind off Bateman's Reef that a lot of little fishermen had great difficulty in reaching the harbor, and the coasters far out to sea scarcely had any headway at all.

The three racers and the great fleet of pleasure craft were all under way by 10 o'clock and glided down the harbor in just a whisper of a breeze. When they reached the open sea they found an ugly long swell that rolled the fleet about like a lot of tipsy sailors ashore.
The two graceful Herreshoff 90-footers rose and fell majestically and without much fuss. Old Columbia behaved the best.

Over Triangular Course.
Independence showed her humely slate-colored snout into the waves and threw great cleaves of spray aside. Her scow model was not adapted to such conditions. The wind was blowing about 5 knots from the southwest and gave signs of freshening. The committee boat May took up a position and fired the warning gun at 11:45, and set signals for a triangular course, giving a beat of ten miles to windward and two reaches of ten miles each.
The three racers had very little wind and were just able to move. Constitution was behind and close to the line at the starting gun. She crossed within 11 seconds. Columbia and Independence were around the way with Columbia in the weather berth. Columbia crossed 1 minute and 25 seconds after.

All were on the starboard tack. Constitution took a short hitch to port crossing the other's bow and made fast to the windward berth. As the new boat swung around on the starboard tack again the three were all close together with Independence under Columbia's lee. Columbia and Independence were footing faster than the new boat because they were given more of a full.

Half Far to Leeward.
Haff, anxious to get out of his poor position, under Columbia's lee, held Independence away off and ran by the others, but was soon far down to leeward. For over an hour after the start the progress of the three was slow. Constitution held well up to windward and was a quarter of a mile ahead of Columbia. Independence was abreast with Constitution, but fully half a mile to leeward.
At 12:25 Columbia came about. Constitution followed almost immediately. In-

SHINN ON TRIAL FOR HIS LIFE.

Young Farmer Accused of Murder of T. F. Applegate.

The trial of Samuel Shinn, indicted for the murder of Thomas F. Applegate, a farmer, was begun to-day in the Mercer County Court, at Trenton, N. J. County Prosecutor Crosby conducted the case for the State, and Lawyers Beasley and Walker appeared for the defense. The Shinn and the Applegates formerly lived on adjoining farms at Extonville, and Samuel Shinn, the defendant, and the Applegates were intimate friends, up to a short time before Applegate met his death.
It is claimed that Samuel Shinn and old Applegate quarreled on account of domestic troubles which Applegate had with his wife. It is alleged that in January last Applegate was warned by "whitcaps" that if he did not stop ill-treating his wife he would be subjected to a coat of tar and feathers and compelled to leave the town.
Some time after this Applegate and Shinn had a row in a barroom, and Shinn was arrested on complaint of Applegate. From that time on bad feeling is said to have existed between the two men.
Applegate was found dead in a stall of his barn. His body lay close to the head of his horse and it was generally supposed he had been kicked to death by the horse. The County prosecutor, however, refused to accept this theory and presented the case to the Grand Jury and had Shinn indicted.
Shinn's wife testified that there was no evidence to show that a crime had been committed, much less to prove that Shinn had been in any way responsible for Applegate's death. The County Prosecutor in court stated that he had sufficient evidence to show that Applegate had met with foul play.

BRUTALLY BEATEN BY SPATE'S MEN.

Tired-Out Man Tells a Story of Assault in Madison Square.

Spate's chairs were the cause of an assault upon Joseph Krause, of No. 23 Rivington street, this morning.
Krause, who is in Hudson Street Hospital, badly bruised; tells a straightforward story of the mix-up. He says he was looking for employment and, being heated and tired, wandered into Madison Square Park to rest. There were no vacant benches beneath the trees, but he saw a chair in an inviting spot and he pre-empted it.
"Suddenly I was grabbed from behind," said Krause, "and down I went backward. While sprawling on the ground the gray-suited attendant kicked me in the back, on the right ankle and on the arm. The blows made me helpless. A crowd gathered and the Spate man ran away. He was the same one that was chased on Saturday by a mob.
"I went to Policeman No. 212 and asked him for protection. He grabbed me by the throat and threatened to use his club on me unless I got out of the park and the crowd dispersed.
"Two men assisted me to the hospital, where my wounds were dressed.
"I have the names of six witnesses to the whole affair, including the assault by the attendant and the choking I received at the hands of the policeman.
"No demand for rental of the chair was made upon me. The first I knew of trouble was when the chair went over backward and the attendant shouted, 'Take that! You're the cause of all this trouble about these chairs.'
"Krause is unable to stand and suffers much pain.
There was a lot of excitement over the Spate chairs in Madison Square to-day

WALL STREET HAD AN EXCITING DAY.

Slump in Railway Shares the Feature of a Bearish Market.

Wall street had an exciting day. Prices were decidedly bearish at the opening, and soon a semi-panic prevailed.
Railway shares and the Steel stocks led in a slump that became panicky toward the close.
The railway freight war in the West was given as the reason for the big drop in railway shares, but the fall in Steel stocks could not thus be accounted for.
The entire market sagged so rapidly that speculators became apprehensive.
St. Paul led the list in declines, falling 11 points in the last hour of trading.
Prices tumbled throughout the day. The Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, Manhattan and the United States Steel stocks were off from 7 to 10 points.
While his pet United States Steel stock was being hammered by its bears, J. P. Morgan sat in his private office in consultation with the members of his firm and Clinton Dawkins, of London.

The big financial institutions continued to loan money to support the market throughout the day. Ten million dollars was loaned at 6 per cent. by the Morton Trust Company.
Reports of crop damages in the West was one of the many reasons for the day's heavy selling movement.
Call money loaned as high as 9 per cent., but the great bulk was offered at 7 to 8 per cent. One bank, the National Bank of Commerce, offered four millions of steady the market.
One of the contributing causes was a rumor that President Shaffer, of the Amalgamated Association, had broken off negotiations for a settlement pending the reinstatement of the union men.

NO RACE TO-DAY FOR SHAMROCKS

Flat Calm Prevented Test of Lipton's Challenger.

ROTHERY, Fifth of Clyde, July 8.—The Shamrocks did not race to-day. They were towed out this morning by the Erin, on the chance of finding a breeze down channel. But the flat calm continued; the boats did not start racing and they were towed back to Rothery, whence they will race to-morrow.
It is asserted by those who are close to Sir Thomas Lipton and Mr. Watson, the designer, that they are both greatly cheered by the turn of speed shown by the Shamrock II, during one of the legs of Friday's trial. In a fresh breeze, with boom flattened almost to windward, she beat the Shamrock I, decisively.
Sir Thomas and Mr. Watson believe they are at last discovering the cup challenger's true form.

SEVEN SOLDIERS DROWNED.

A Boat Capsizes in the River Rhine.

KIEL, Baden, July 8.—While the Nineteenth Pioneer Battalion was practising on the Rhine to-day a boat containing sixteen soldiers capsized. Seven of the men were drowned.

BURIED IN WRECKAGE.

Twelve Firemen Fall Through the Floor of Burning Building.
CHICAGO, July 8.—Twelve firemen fell from a floor and were buried under wreckage in a fire here to-day, but were rescued by their companions.
While handling a load of hose on the first floor the support gave way and the men were precipitated into the basement. Their companions rushed through the smoke with ropes and ladders and assisted their injured comrades to the street.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Generally fair and comparatively cool weather to-night and Tuesday; light to fresh northwest winds.
